The Nuclear Regulatory Commission

I. SCOPE OF THE AGREEMENT

A. AGREEMENT OBJECTIVE:

The NIH will provide NRC equipment disposal services. These services will include, but are not limited to excess equipment utilization and disposal services, to comply with policy contained in the Federal Property Management Regulations (FPMR) and the NIH Personal Property Management Guide and NRC internal policies and procedures, disposal of excess equipment from various NRC offices and facilities in the Washington, D.C. metropolitan area; screening and re-utilization of NRC excess equipment within NRC and NIH; and reporting of excess equipment to the General Services Administration on behalf of NIH. NIH will ensure that all applicable Federal Property Management Regulations (FPMR) will be followed during performance of these services.

B. WORK REQUIREMENTS AND ESTIMATED ANNUAL VALUE

Under this agreement, NRC will deliver excess equipment items (estimated to be an average of 625 pieces per quarter) to the NIH Gaither Distribution Center (GDC) at 16050 Industrial Drive, Gaithersburg, Md.. Each NRC delivery will include a listing of the items being delivered on an SF120 form (Transfer Order Excess Personal Property) or SF 126 (Report of Property for Sale). The quantity of items listed on the SF 120 or SF 126 will be the number of equipment items used for billing purposes. All lists will be provided to NIH in both electronic format (using Microsoft Excel) and in hard copy format.

NRC will assure that all items of property transferred to NIH are free of any and all physical, safety, health and environmental hazards. Hazards include, but are not limited to, chemical, radiological, explosive and biological agents. NRC will render all property innocuous before transfer.

NRC will assure that data and licensed software are removed from all Information Technology Equipment prior to transfer to NIH. NRC will provide NIH with information on the Y2K compliance or lack of compliance for each item of information technology related equipment, in accordance with GSA Bulletin FPMR H-76.

NRC will certify that each item of scientific property transferred to NIH is either Y2K compliant, Y2K non-compliant, or that the item is not considered to be biomedical equipment, according to GSA Bulletin FPMR H-76.

The cost of NIH providing excess and disposal services to NRC will be at the rate of $1.00 per equipment item. The estimated annual cost of this agreement for NIH processing general equipment items is: 625 items a quarter X 4 quarters = 2500 items X $1.00 per item = $2,500.00

Once an authorized NIH Government employee signs the SF120, SF126 the listed property will belong to the NIH which will provide disposal action in accordance with applicable laws, and GSA and NIH regulations.
