You can use these numbers as published numbers, but you have to do it in context. NUREG/CR numbers are not necessarily peer reviewed by NRC, nor are they necessarily endorsed by NRC. The NUREG numbers have to be taken in the context of what was trying to be examined. People may not have sharpened their pencils if the results were satisfactory from a cost benefit endpoint.

I would state that we are examining the "probabilities" for spent fuel pool accidents at decommissioned plants in a systematic manner both internally and at a National Lab.
