Describe Follow-up: (Telephone, Internet, Chamber of Commerce, Other) Dennis Darragh, Vice President, Forbo Industries (570-459-0771). Jim Chew, Forbo Industries (570-459-0771, ext. 506). Wally Yocum, RJF International Corporation, Marietta, Ohio (formerly of L.E. Carpenter in Wharton, New Jersey and Forbo Industries in Hazelton, Pennsylvania) (740-374-6400). Ray Sawyer, Plant Engineer, RJF International Corporation, Marietta, Ohio (740-374-6400). Forbo Industries acquired a company that had acquired L. E. Carpenter. Forbo shut down operations in Wharton and moved them to Hazelton. They have since divested of manufacturing (to RJF in Ohio) and now do warehousing and sales. In Wharton, there were three machines (produced thin plastic wall covering). When the Wharton site closed, two lines/gauges were taken out of service and the third was sent to Hazelton. Sometime in the next seven years, that line/gauge was taken out of service and either two or three more were put in service. When Forbo divested of manufacturing facilities, one line was sold to RJF International Corporation, Oak Grove, Marietta, OH 45750 (Contact: Ray Sawyer, Plant Engineer, 740-374-6400) and one to RJF International Corporation, 4700 Shepardsville Road, Louisville, Kentucky 40218 (Contact Mike Ulanowski, Plant Engineer; Vendor's Contact: Bob Mogenstern). If there was a third, it was taken out of service in Hazelton.
Describe Communication with Registration Vendor: Chris Fitz of NDC Infrared Engineering (626-939-3859) (Case 47180). NDC Infrared Engineering, Inc. reported that it had sold two gauges (serial nos. 2965 and 5044) to the L. E. Carpenter. A note in its file dated October 12, 1999 stated that there were no more manufacturing facilities on the Hazelton, PA site. Its records show that the two gauges were transferred on May 31, 1995 to RJF International, one to the Marietta, Ohio site and the other to the Louisville, Kentucky site. The former gauge was transferred to the Louisville, Kentucky site on February 28, 2000. Both have been leak tested regularly. Both transfers were included in the vendor's reports to the NRC.

The gauges at the Wharton, NJ facility were moved to Hazelton, then taken out of service properly. Those that remained in Hazelton when Forbo divested of manufacturing were transferred to facilities in Ohio and Kentucky, and the vendor reported the transfers to the NRC. Our database appears to have multiple listings for some devices; given Forbo's behavior relative to the gauges, it is likely that the gauges they and the vendor have discussed with us are the only gauges L. E. Carpenter & Company owned. Although the tritium-powered exit signed were not inspected under the temporary instruction, it is likely they were dealt with responsibly.
