OE recommends that for the green issue associated with the eddy current technique that we conclude that it's an NCV on the basis that, even though they disagree with the violation, they restored compliance and fixed the problem (there's no need to put anything in the CA program) - the problem doesn't exist anymore. We don't agree to call it a green violation that the licensee disagrees with and have them discuss it in the reg conference. This would seem to require a cited violation now. If they want to discuss it in the reg conference, that's their choice - we shouldn't ask them to.
