NRC NAMES VICTOR H. RANSOM TO ADVISORY COMMITTEE ON REACTOR SAFEGUARDS

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission has appointed Victor H. Ransom to its independent Advisory Committee on Reactor Safeguards (ACRS).

Dr. Ransom is retired from the Purdue University School of Nuclear Engineering, where he taught a variety of courses and headed the School for eight years. He is currently Professor Emeritus of Nuclear Engineering at the university and is performing consulting work for Information Systems Laboratory, Inc., where he has conducted research on two-phase flow modeling. While at Purdue, he led research on advanced simulation methods for two-phase flow, thermal hydraulics of advanced light water reactor concepts, and application of the RELAP5 code for simulation of light-water reactor systems. The RELAP5 code is used internationally and is considered Dr. Ransom's most significant engineering accomplishment.

He received his Bachelor of Science degree in Chemical Engineering from the University of Idaho and his PhD in Mechanical Engineering from Purdue.

The ACRS was established in 1957 by Congress to advise the former Atomic Energy Commission and subsequently the Nuclear Regulatory Commission with regard to the safety aspects of proposed and existing nuclear facilities and the adequacy of related safety standards. The ACRS also performs other special assignments that the Commission may request, such as review of the NRC research program.

Other Members of the ACRS are:

CHAIRMAN: Dr. George E. Apostolakis, Professor, Nuclear Engineering Department, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, MA.

VICE-CHAIRMAN: Dr. Mario V. Bonaca, retired Director, Nuclear Engineering Department, Northeast Utilities, CT.
