Thank you for your email. The DOE site has removed some material and, after reviewing for possible sensitivities, left other material available to the public. The NRC removed nearly all its content and decided to perform our reviews for possible sensitivity of information in support of a re-design of the site that was already underway. Much of the material that was previously on the NRC site will be returned during the implementation of the re-design project (over the next several weeks). Thank you again and please email this address or call me (Bill Reckley at (301-415-2429)) if you have any questions or concerns.

I apologize. It is information under the spent fuel section, and may not be a big deal. But I know that the NRC doesn't have that listed anymore.

Thanks for your e-mail. But I am puzzled. Table 1 and 9 of what?

I was doing some research for a story. And of course my usual Nuclear Regulatory Commission Web site source has hidden much of its information.

I noticed Table 1 and 9 are working. It is similiar in its revealing nature to the information the NRC has kept from the public, thus this e-mail just incase you didn't want this information accessible to the public.
