Bill,

We intend to add one of these two sentences to the withholding memo. What are your thoughts on this?

Ramin

Because documents in the PDR are widely available through other sources (GPO, NTIS, local libraries, etc.), we do not intend to have the PDR staff review requests for archived documents. If the technical staff identifies individual documents that contain sensitive information, the PDR staff will no longer make them available. This may require removing a document in its entirety, such as an archived FSAR that is stored on microfiche, even though only several pages are considered sensitive. ....(A or B)..... Additionally, because NRC does not control archival collections external to the agency, documents may continue to be made publicly available through other sources.

A: Licensees who submit more current updates to FSARs on CD-ROM can more easily separate sensitive material from that which is non-sensitive.

B: Current and future documents that are in electronic form (i.e. on CD-ROM) will be available to the public, provided sensitive material have been removed. For example, licensees can easily separate sensitive material from non-sensitive material when submitting more current updates to FSARs on CD-ROM.
