Subject: Procedure for Release of NUREGs and RGs

Mabel,

Ann Beranek and I met today with Mindy Landau (OEDO) and Bill Reckley (NRR) to discuss procedures for releasing web and paper-based documents. Bill is a member of a small NRR group that reviews NRR documents for release to the public. We concluded that since the Commission is still considering the final review criteria, the following procedure should be used until those criteria are made available.

1. NUREGs and Regulatory Guides can be issued if review by technical staff from the originating office determines that the specific document is not sensitive, based on the draft and supplemental criteria for releasing information to the public. Indication that the document has been reviewed for sensitivity will be provided through the existing concurrence path by the cognizant Division Director of the originating office. The concurrence will specifically indicate that the sensitivity review has been made.

2. NUREGs and Regulatory Guides will not be released to the public through the NRC public web site until they have been reviewed against final criteria for releasing information to the public.

Gil
