#4. When we started on the RTA-VA work and we made an effort to select certain casks/packages to study I was under the impression that we would begin to identify the particular object of our studies with some ID number or letter that we would know and that the specific supplier/manufacture would not be identified. In the case of the storage casks, the specific individual casks were lumped into categories which could be identified generically such as metallic or steel shell with concrete fill material. What is the current thinking on this matter, or has there been no additional discussion?

General: Per your E-Mail transmitting Jerry's response it is clear we want two outlines for two separate reports. I think he should get that message.

Attached are my comments to what I received from SNL revising their outline for the Sept 30th report based on our previous comments. I do not see any point in making a revision to the outline since it needs to be changed when split into two reports.

Comments??

Thanks
