Neil,

The team manager says the list of components (therefore systems) is pre-decisional. He has a point since the team is actually still whittling down the initial population of risk significant components selected to a smaller list for the more detailed review. If we released components that don't make the final list, we'd have to explain that later.

The generic answer is that the team has selected risk significant components for review from the emergency core cooling systems, the containment system, power conversion systems, and auxiliary systems.

Regards,

RT

Larry,

A reporter for the Brattleboro (Vt.) Reformer asked if we can provide a list of systems being looked at in the engineering inspection. What say you?
