Start with any that may be safety related and identify them for for further review (should be very few, if any). If they're BOP or labor-management related I would just list them and bin them on the S drive. The list doesn't have to be all inclusive just representative of the most significant issues.

I got through the attachments (E-Mails, memos, etc.) and am starting with the official transcript. My question is what/how do we want to treat the hardware issues he pointed out. There are dozens! No way of knowing which ones still exist.

If you get a chance tomorrow please stop by and give me some guidance.
