NRC INFORMATION NOTICE NO. 88-83: INADEQUATE TESTING OF RELAY CONTACTS
IN SAFETY-RELATED LOGIC SYSTEMS

Addressees:

All holders of operating licenses or construction permits for nuclear power reactors.

Purpose:

This information notice is being provided to alert addressees to potential problems resulting from inadequate testing of relay contacts in safety-related logic systems. It is expected that recipients will review the information for applicability to their facilities and consider actions, as appropriate, to avoid similar problems. However, suggestions contained in this information notice do not constitute NRC requirements; therefore, no specific action or written response is required.

Description of Circumstances:

During an inspection of the reactor core isolation cooling (RCIC) and high pressure coolant injection (HPCI) systems reliability program at the Duane Arnold Energy Center (DAEC), NRC inspectors discovered apparent deficiencies with the logic system functional test procedures for both systems. Specifically, during the first phase of the functional test, the test procedures called for either the isolation or the blocking of relay contacts while the operation of the actuation relay was tested. These contacts were then either bypassed or jumpered when the second phase of the test was performed. Thus, the relay contacts were not being tested. This is significant in that failure of these relay contacts could result in the inoperability of the RCIC or HPCI systems.

Discussion:

The DAEC Technical Specifications define a logic system functional test as "a test of all relays and contacts of a logic circuit to ensure all components are operable per design intent. Where practicable, action will go to completion; i.e., pumps will be started and valves operated." Although the DAEC Technical Specifications clearly define a Logic System Functional Test as "a test of all relays and contacts . . ." (emphasis added), the licensee apparently interpreted "all relays and contacts" to not include relay contacts. Enforcement action was taken since the failure to test the initiation isolation relay contacts had resulted in a violation of the Technical Specifications. Although the preceding discussion concerns the RCIC and HPCI system logic, inadequate logic system functional testing may exist in other safety-related systems.

PDR I&E Notice 88-083

As a result of NRC concerns regarding this matter, the licensee initiated an augmented testing program to ensure that safety-related circuit components and contacts are verified to be operable per design intent. The specific objective of the program is to ensure that the test procedures demonstrate full logic system performance from the sensor to the actuated device within the design intent of the systems safety function.

No specific action or written response is required by this information notice. If you have any questions about this matter, please contact the technical contact listed below or the Regional Administrator of the appropriate regional office.
