Good morning,

Financial Considerations

There are two financial considerations that I have seen no mention of in public news releases. I want to mention them today.

Nuclear Plant Liability Insurance Coverage

Given that, (based on Fukushima Daiichi), simultaneous multi plant accidents on one site will cost a lot of money, has anybody reviewed present U.S. nuclear plant coverage relative to adjusting plant fees or limits of coverage when all site plants are in operation at the same time, (as opposed to when only one at a time runs)?

The point here is that (cumulative site) risk can be controlled, (actually, reduced), it appears, by running less plants (at any site) at the same time.

Asset Recovery

What is the monetary value of the nuclear fuel at all the sites that will not run anymore? (This includes Unit 5 and 6 of Fukushima Daiichi as well as all 4 units at Fukushima Daini. Also, the other units they have at another site and the stuff in the site fuel storage pools.)

Here is the idea: sell it.

Not only do you get some money for it, you have reduced your (present level of) responsibility for it.

Thank you,

Tom Gurdziel
