Hi Johari:

A few items since we spoke:

- Concerning per diem for the tribes that responded to the original open site proposal the expense allowance was $132.00 per day to cover lodging and meals. The TWG proposal contains $46 per diem for meals and expenses and Strata provides the lodging. Strata would not have an issue if some of the tribes working under the original open site proposal would rather receive the per diem for meals, etc. and have Strata provide the lodging similar to the TWG.
- We are getting a final quote from our insurance company on the liability insurance and I will you know when we have received that and purchased a policy. Pour insurance carrier has told us that the tribes that require this coverage would still need to provide a waiver for personal injury. In order to provide the liability coverage at a cost that is not astronomical the insurance company needs assurance that personal injury cannot be claimed under this coverage. I am not sure how many tribes you are working with would require the Strata coverage; for those that provide proof of insurance or a waiver as envisioned in the original proposals there should be no problem.

Mike
