To the NRC:

You talk of making nuclear waste safe, having confidence in where it is buried. There is no such thing as safe nuclear waste. All nuclear power plants are crimes against humanity and planet Earth and so is all the waste from these plants.

Here are my recommendations for where nuclear waste should be buried with confidence:

- On the lawns of the White House.
- In the yards of all the Congresspeople, past and present, who voted for nuclear power plants.
- In the yards of all the owners, past and present, of nuclear power plants.
- In the yards of all the lobbyists past and present, for nuclear power plants.
- In the yards of the entire NRC, past and present.

I hope some day we will have Nuremberg Trials for all the people who are responsible, past and present, for nuclear power plants, nuclear waste from these plants, and those talking about the waste of nuclear power plants as if it were something you could safely deal with and dispose of with confidence - instead of noting that it is a crime against humanity and planet earth.

Nuclear power plants and their waste are murdering generations of our children. Their blood is on your hands

Sincerely,

Sheila Parks, Ed.D.
