comments: Gentlemen: I firmly believe that the best solution that can be agreed upon by most parties and implemented in a reasonable time, and that provides the best level of security and protection is a dedicated above ground long-term retrievable storage at a central facility. Idaho National Laboratory meets the general requirements for such a facility. Current on-site interim storage is a terrorist dream waiting to be exploited. Multiple sites, many located near population centers, cannot provide the confidence required for these spent fuel items.
