i am appalled that the NRC would even consider expanding turkey point at all, much less adding two new reactors! the NRC made a big mistake in allowing FPL to expand its capacity and to allow it to continue in operation after its original design period expired. this has proven to already be catastrophic: the cooling canals now do not work at this increased capacity. and s. florida will be faced with either 1) black outs in peak demand summer months 2) or letting fp&l use our scarcest resource, more water to cool the expanded facility. already this year, one of the reactors was taken off line for some mysterious reason. with global warming, miami and florida will be the first affected areas in the nation with sea level rise. so how can anyone, NRC, fp&l, propose adding two more nuclear reactors at turkey point in that scenario. the winds have shifted in energy supplies and natural gas is much more affordable and doesnt have to be built along the coast. also, solar and wind and thermal have now become competitive to nuclear, in fact, cheaper than nuclear (considering nuclear plants have a federal subsidy) fp&l does its customers and more importantly its shareholders a disservice by proposing such an expensive proposition. and the cities along US 1 where fp&l wants to put the huge transmission lines is being fought in court. the NRC needs to do the right thing here. south florida has no feasible alternatives to mass exodus in case of a nuclear accident at the aged turkey point. the population explosion in 40 years has left

all of us vulnerable to this accident waiting to happen. pls deny the addition of the two additional nuclear reactors at turkey point. it is a poorly conceived boondoggle by fp&I that the NRC should not entertain in this day and age! i am a realtor and i strongly believe that all the property value in miami is at extreme risk with turkey point. happy earth day! do your jobs! sincerely, kitty roedel 4181 malaga ave, miami, fl. 33133
