General Comment

It is very clear to me, and to the American people at large, that this proposed rule to assert the Hormesis Model (a scientifically unfounded model) is merely a means of avoiding accountability for the mass radiation exposure we face. The use of this unproven model is unethical and destructive to the victims of radiation exposure. We deserve to know the condition of our bodies as a result of exposure and deserve a government that serves our interests and well-being. We, after all, fund you as a public servant. Do not allow this to pass. The whole of the scientific community, and the people of this country, are trusting you to do the right thing.
