Docket No. 50-397

October 24, 1989

U. S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission
Attn: Document Control Desk
Washington, D. C. 20555

Gentlemen:

Subject: NUCLEAR PLANT NO. 2, OPERATING LICENSE NPF-21
RESPONSE TO NRC ISSUANCE OF AMENDMENT NO. 74

The reference provided a Technical Specification change relative to the isolation provided the remote intakes of the control room HVAC system. The reference stated that the amendment must be implemented within seven days of issuance and that within 30 days the Supply System must certify that station procedures have been revised to implement this amendment and that all appropriate staff have been trained in the implementation of these procedures.

The amendment was received on October 3, 1989. I certify that procedures required to implement the subject amendment were deviated on October 6, 1989 and that appropriate staff were trained on these deviations as they came on duty starting with the day shift on October 6. The amendment was implemented at 1549 hours on October 6 with the crew on duty at that time having received the training required to implement the procedures.

The reference used the term "revised" relative to the required procedure changes. A procedure deviation, as the term is used above, is the process by which a procedure is changed by markup and implemented after completion of a 10CFR50.59 analysis and specified review and approval. It is later approved by the Plant Operations Committee (POC) at their next regularly scheduled meeting. In this case, however, because of the significance of the change, the procedure deviations were reviewed and approved by a special POC on October 6 prior to the implementation of the amendment. The procedures were then revised (i.e. retyped) and approved by POC on October 11, 1989.

Very truly yours,

G. C. Sorensen, Manager
Regulatory Programs
