PART I.C COMMENTS (Use attached Comments continuation page if required)

As reflected in the enclosed Yellow Announcement No. 040 (May 28, 2003), which is the only record responsive to your request that was located, the Foreign Intelligence Information Program was abolished in 2003. We conducted searches of the Nuclear Security & Incident Response (NSIR) and Office of International Programs (OIP) offices; no other records were found. Staff advised that any records generated out of this program would have been disposed of in accordance with applicable record disposition schedules. You may wish to refer back to MD 12.2, provided to you in response to prior requests, for current guidance on the NRC's Classified Information Security Program.

UNITED STATES NUCLEAR REGULATORY COMMISSION

Announcement No. 040

Date: May 28, 2003

To: All NRC Employees

SUBJECT: TERMINATION OF THE NRC FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE INFORMATION PROGRAM

After performing an effectiveness and efficiency review, the NRC has decided to terminate the NRC Foreign Intelligence Information (FII) Program because existing programs provide adequate protection of classified intelligence information and additional FII requirements are not justified by the benefits they yield. The FII program was created by the NRC in 1975 to provide more protection to some SECRET and CONFIDENTIAL information than currently required by Federal directives. The NRC will continue to adhere to all Federal directives relating to the protection of classified information without the additional requirements of the FII program.

Now that the NRC FII program has been abolished, the requirements for classified information previously designated as FII are the same as the comparable level of CONFIDENTIAL and SECRET information. The following changes resulted from the termination of the FII program:

1. Commissioners, office directors, and regional administrators are no longer required to nominate individuals for access to FII. Personnel may have access to classified information if they possess the appropriate access authorization (security clearance) and need-to-know.
2. FII-specific training is no longer required and will no longer be offered.
3. The FII cover sheet along with its access list used to document individual access to FII is no longer required and will not be used. Instead, the standard red SECRET and blue CONFIDENTIAL cover sheets will be used to protect classified information previously identified as FII.
4. Classified information previously designated as FII at the CONFIDENTIAL or SECRET level may now be destroyed through shredding, pulping, etc., or by disposal in classified waste receptacles located throughout NRC buildings.

Employees can obtain detailed information on the proper handling of classified information in Management Directives 12.1, "NRC Facility Security Program," and 12.2, "NRC Classified Information Security Program," or by contacting the Information Security Section at 301-415-2212.
