Dear Mr. Tarver,

On behalf of the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC), I am responding to your letter dated June 12, 2018, in which you appealed the agency's decision related to your Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request NRC-2018-000361, which was seeking access to documents prepared in connection with the 30th session of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) which was held on April 21-23, 2009, in Antalya, Turkey (NRC-2018-000361). Specifically, you appealed the adequacy of search.

Acting on your appeal, I have reviewed the records for this case and have confirmed that there were no participants at the meeting and no NRC records that are responsive to your request. As stated in our final response to NRC-2018-000361 to you, the scope of this request does not fall within NRC's responsibilities. Therefore, I have denied your appeal.

This is the final agency decision. As set forth in the FOIA (5 U.S.C. 552(a)(4)(B)), you can seek judicial review of this decision in a district court of the United States in the district in which you reside or have your principal place of business, in the district where the agency's records are situated, or in the District of Columbia.

As part of the 2007 FOIA amendments, the Office of Government Information Services (OGIS) was created to offer mediation services to resolve disputes between FOIA requesters and Federal agencies as a nonexclusive alternative to litigation. Using OGIS services does not affect your right to pursue litigation. If you are requesting access to your own records (which is considered a Privacy Act request), you should know that OGIS does not have the authority to handle requests made under the Privacy Act of 1974.
