Dear Mr. Tarver,

On behalf of the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC), I am responding to your letter dated June 12, 2018, in which you appealed the agency's decision related to your Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request NRC-2018-000359, which was seeking the past 12 month correspondence logs that records letters from members of Congress and the NRC (NRC-2018-000359). Specifically, you appealed the adequacy of search.

Acting on your appeal, I have reviewed the records for this case and have determined that, as stated in our final response to NRC-2018-000359 dated 5/25/18, your request is part of prior FOIA requests, which are closed and are publicly available.

The NRC provided the following responsive pages to you: Pages 10 -22, ML17300A028, and page 2, ML17201B531. Furthermore, the agency had previously provided the records in response to FOIA/PA-2017-0341, ML17088A699 to you, dated 3/27/17, which include responsive pages 47-51. There are no additional responsive records outside of what was already provided in those responses. Therefore, I have denied your appeal.

This is the final agency decision. As set forth in the FOIA (5 U.S.C. 552(a)(4)(B)), you can seek judicial review of this decision in a district court of the United States in the district in which you reside or have your principal place of business, in the district where the agency's records are situated, or in the District of Columbia.

As part of the 2007 FOIA amendments, the Office of Government Information Services (OGIS) was created to offer mediation services to resolve disputes between FOIA requesters and Federal agencies as a nonexclusive alternative to litigation. Using OGIS services does not affect your right to pursue litigation. If you are requesting access to your own records (which is considered a Privacy Act request), you should know that OGIS does not have the authority to handle requests made under the Privacy Act of 1974.
