

SUNSI Review Complete
Template = ADM-013
E-RIDS=ADM-03
ADD=Sarah Lopas

COMMENT (62)
PUBLICATION DATE:
10/29/2018
CITATION: 83 FR
54380

As of: 1/29/19 8:23 AM
Received: January 27, 2019
Status: Pending_Post
Tracking No. 1k3-97x6-xjsl
Comments Due: January 29, 2019
Submission Type: Web

PUBLIC SUBMISSION

Docket: NRC-2018-0230

Training and Experience Requirements for Different Categories of Radiopharmaceuticals

Comment On: NRC-2018-0230-0001

Training and Experience Requirements for Different Categories of Radiopharmaceuticals

Document: NRC-2018-0230-DRAFT-0068

Comment on FR Doc # 2018-23521

---

Submitter Information

Name: Anonymous Anonymous

---

General Comment

I am BC nuclear physician and an authorized user. I strongly think that AU license for radionuclide therapy should be given to people with adequate training especially for radiologists. I have been in practice for five years and have very well realized that radiologists with three months of training and even radiologists with one year of Nuc Med training are not very competent in administering radionuclide therapy. People having AU license should have adequate training and experience in radionuclide therapy.