Gentlemen:

The following clarification is submitted to our response, dated July 18, 1981, to I.E. Bulletin 81-03.

The first paragraph under 3.b) on page two reads:

"The RWMS is the only direct interface with the affected water. The RWMS is to be continuously chlorinated at a level of 10 ppm, providing a residual-free chlorine level of 1 ppm."

This paragraph should be changed to read:

"The RWMS is the only direct interface with the affected water. The RWMS is to be continuously chlorinated as necessary during the Corbicula spawning season up to a level of 10 ppm, providing a residual-free chlorine level of 1 ppm."

This clarification does not affect the Plant Vogtle capability to combat Corbicula.

This reply contains no proprietary information and may be placed in the NRC's Public Document Room.

Very truly yours,

D. O. Foster
