Mosbaugh: I'd like to look through the chronology myself and try to figure out what was in their minds. That's going to be a challenge for me.

Voice: (Inaudible). That would be a challenge for anybody.

Mosbaugh: Oh, my God, these are all dated today.

Webb: Those are the dates; another one from yesterday. Here's one that says PRB.

Voice: (inaudible).

Webb: At least three, but Shipman changed one of them I know (inaudible) changed the last one.

Mosbaugh: But are they ever going to submit this thing?

Webb: Now that's the problem see, it's a revision, there's no due date when you have to have it sent in by. They can take as long as they like.

Mosbaugh: Well - -

Webb: That could be (inaudible).

Mosbaugh: I'm not sure that's true.

Webb: (inaudible) in the NRC's mind.

Mosbaugh: The LER revision has no due date on it, but the obligation to correct false or misleading information has a time clock on it. Unfortunately, that time clock ran out.

Webb: There is no period of two days or thirty days to correct a misstatement or correct error.

Mosbaugh: Oh, yeah. Oh, yeah. It's not stated in terms of days. It's stated in terms of intent. Okay and that intent is very rapidly ... the regulation, read Title 2 or 50.9.
