I am a resident of the area covered by the LaSalle Co. ComEd Nuclear Plant. What I have been reading about, possible forced walkout by union members, is hard to believe.

I am really at a loss of words to describe NRC's unknown intentions in this possible catastrophic occurrence, that could be lurking in my future.

I have read in local papers, since the plant was built, about fines the NRC has levied over the years, for even the smallest safety infraction. I see this as running a hospital without trained medical personnel, but lots of management people.

The people at ComEd that operate the plant now, go through years of training and are regularly tested, no matter

How long they have been there. I would feel much better if I knew Management people, taking over, were in possession of a current tested license. Also, the population to be effected should have a say in what ComEd does or does not do, when it comes to plant safety. Legally, I believe the NRC should be the experts and their responsibility should be total.

Also, how long can we expect management people to keep up with their jobs and run the reactors. Seems to me, if ComEd had sufficient management people to do all required hands on operation of a nuclear station for an extended period of time safely, then maybe ComEd's problem is they are top heavy.

Thank you for taking the time to read this.

Sincerely,
