Attention: Mr. William O. Miller

Subject: General License Application
For Ohmart Beta Gages

Gentlemen:

Our previous letter of August 27, 1962 transmitted an instruction manual for generally licensed beta gages. References in Section 10 on "Radiation Safety" were made to Ohmart Leak Testing Service and kits. In order to comply with the requirements for this general license, all such references to leak test kits will be removed, since such leak testing will be done by the manufacturer or a person specifically licensed to make such a leak test on these beta gages.

Pursuant to Section 2.810 of Part II of Title 10, we hereby request that the following Ohmart drawings be withheld from public inspection:

The Ohmart Corporation feels that disclosure of the details shown in the above drawings would adversely affect our company if prospective competitors were to copy these source holder designs because we have expended large amounts of engineering cost in the designs, and the construction has been optimized for minimum cost while maintaining the proper design features for safety and reliability.

We look forward to receiving our general license in the near future, or hearing from you concerning any further changes that are felt to be required.

Very truly yours,

THE OHMART CORPORATION
