Gentlemen:

I am writing to request a renewal of our NRC license No. 12-18950-01. I have reviewed our current license and determined that the information in our initial submission has not changed, and the quantities we wish to possess remain as initially submitted. There has also been no change in the documents that were submitted with the original application. I have reviewed the NRC regulations that you sent me and see no changes in these regulations that are not appropriately covered in our program description. We would like to operate under our current license and feel that the supporting documents accurately reflect our program. The documentation previously submitted is listed in the U.S. NRC materials license, dated May 20, 1980.

A check for the amount of $120.00 is enclosed. This check is to cover the cost of the license renewal.

Sincerely,

Bob

Dear Mr. Reichhold:

I called you today to ask if you would check the Teepak file so that I could determine if we were up to date with the necessary submissions to your office. In reviewing the file, you reminded that leak checks on the instrumentation should be made on a six month basis. These have and are being done. In reviewing the file, you indicated that Ed McClure's name was on the listing as Corporate Safety Officer. You also indicated that preferably this should be someone familiar with the instrumentation. On this basis, I would like to submit the name of Douglas Appleby in place of Ed McClure. The cost of updating the records and changing this name would be $120.00 based on our conversation.

You advised me that the file was up to date other than these items and nothing additional would be needed from Teepak to maintain our compliance.

Sincerely,

Bob
