Dear Mr. Delaney:

It has now been a matter of some months since the uranium-containing ceramic materials were submitted to your New York operations office for radiation measurements.

These samples represented considerable time, effort and expense on the part of the producers, who are very good customers of ours.

The delay in reporting on these tests has already reduced interest in uranium on the part of the ceramic industry almost to the vanishing point. We would, however, still like to be able to report the results of the tests, in order that our customers may feel that their work was of some value.

May we have your comments at your earliest convenience?

Very truly yours,

THE HARSHAW CHEMICAL COMPANY
