Dear Sir:

Please give me the reasons why potassium iodide continues not to be readily available to people who live in the vicinity of a nuclear power plants.

If the nuclear power industry succeeds in its efforts to ship its nuclear radioactive waste to Nevada, will potassium iodide be available to the people along the train and truck routes and the workers handling the waste?

What authority or control does the NRC have in this matter?

A response will be appreciated.

Sincerely,

Laura Perreault
