DOCKET NUMBER

PROMISED RULE

PR-Misc Notice
(NUREG-0956)

Docketing & Service Branch
Secretary of the Commission
U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission
Washington, D.C. 20555

Dear Sir or Madame:

On October 5th, I wrote to you to request an extension of ninety days beyond the already allotted comment period on NUREG-0956, based on the time delays involved in securing the draft proposal, the lengthy and technical nature of that proposal, and the need for detailed and informed review and public comment. Such an extension would enable interested citizens and intervenors nationally the opportunity for such review and comment, something not possible under the present time limitations.

I am writing again concerning additional difficulties which have been placed on respondents such as ourselves.

On October 26th, I received a response to my request for a copy of Draft NUREG-0956. The response stated that I had to mail our group's request to a different address, and that I needed to enclose $10 to receive a copy. We mailed to the exact address published in the Federal Register (see enclosure). Moreover, the Register made no mention of the $10 fee.

Effectively, we have lost another month before we can have the opportunity to review this important material. In fact, it will be impossible under the existing time limitation, as set forth in the Register (supra) for us to review and comment on the draft proposal.

Obviously, any other potential respondent likewise relying on the information published in the Federal Register will experience the same problems.

Considering these extenuating circumstances and the technical nature of the material, it is only fair that the original ninety day comment period be extended. In light of these hardships affecting our organization and other possible respondents who have relied on the Federal Register, to refuse said extension would be contrary to the reasoning for having the comment period: to seek informed public comment.

Sincerely,

Barbara S. Bush

Issuance of NUREG-0956; "Reassessment of the Technical Basis for Estimating Source Terms"

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission has issued a report, NUREG-0956, (Draft for Comment) "Reassessment of the Technical Bases for Estimating Source Terms." The report was written by the NRC staff.

Draft NUREG-0956 describes the effort by the NRC staff and their contractors to reassess and update the analytical procedures used to estimate severe accident source terms for nuclear power plants. A source term is defined as the quantity, timing, and characteristics of the release of radioactive material to the environment following a core melt accident. Source terms are used in many areas of the regulatory process. In their report, the staff describes the analytical procedures, the results, the review process, insights on risk, future research, and conclusions.

Public comments are being solicited on Draft NUREG-0956. Comments should be sent to the Secretary of the Commission, U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Washington, DC 20555. Attention: Docketing and Service Branch, (by October 7, 1985.)
