Thank you, could you please make it "Certified Health Physicist".

Thanks again,

Kyle,

Thank you. Based on your response, I'm going to use "Certified Health Physics" as the ABHP "specialty area" on our NRC public website. Let me know if that is not correct.

I hope you're having a great morning.

Jenny

Good morning Jenny,

You should receive a response from Michael from your March 9th email with an attached 2006 certificate and a current certificate which has been in use since 2018. In both cases the term Diplomate of the American Board of Health Physics is included on the certificate. Although CHPs are authorized to use either CHP or DABHP, the vast majority of us use "CHP".

We issue our certificates in November of each year. Based on your March 9th email I provided Michael with a 2006 certificate. The 2005 certificate was the same as the 2006 certificate.

Once you've received Michael's response, please let me know if you need any additional information of clarification.

Best regards,

Kyle Kleinhans, CHP

Dear Michael,

Thank you for your prompt response.

For the ABHP specialty area, you had provided two different terms in your response. Is Certified Health Physicist (CHP) the preferred term? Which term is included on the certificate?

- Certified Health Physicists (CHP)
- Diplomates of the American Board of Health Physics (DABHP)

To follow up on my e-mail from March 9th, would you be able to send us a copy of the ABHP certificate? The certificate needs to include any special terms or phrases and a "not valid" or "sample" watermark across the text of the certificate.

Can you confirm that this is the same certificate that has been used since January 1, 2005?

Thanks so much,

Jenny

Subject: ABHP Letter from the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission

Dear Michael,

Good Afternoon. This morning I called the ABHP to verify the mailing address. I now understand that ABHP is under new management. In the 2019 and 2020 timeframe, the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission staff (including me) were trying to get ahold of Amy Wride-Graney. We were not successful. Attached is a letter that we had sent.

Since taking over, have you sent a letter to address these concerns? If you have not seen this letter yet, would you be able to address these concerns?

The NRC is currently preparing an additional letter to all of the specialty boards to verify your status of an NRC-recognized specialty board. You should receive that very soon.
